SUKOSAN is a town and small harbor in a vast bay, 11 km south-east of Zadar; population 2,500. Chief occupations include farming, viticulture, olive growing, fruit growing and tourism. A medieval settlement has been founded at the bottom of the shallow and sheltered lagoon called Golden Harbour. Today Sukosan spreads around the entire spacious bay, and the first founded village is just a heart of present developed tourist place. In the Sukosan lagoon, on the artificially made small islet, is built a summer palace. Only three walls as modest remains of former palace still jut out of the sea, which are most impressive during the summer solstice, when the sun sets down between two walls. Inside of the former village walls, Sukosan is meshed by the narrow streets surrounded by the old stone-built houses. In the central part of this village there is the parish church, dedicated to the protector of Sukosan - Saint Casanus. Especially vibrant is the square "Gornja vrata" with the old villas renovated in charming restaurants and a chapel dedicated to the Virgin Mary. During the summer season, various culture and entertaining performances take place on this square. Due to its numerous restaurants and taverns, Sukosan is being considered a place of wine and song!

ZADAR, an ancient town about 3000 years old, with a huge roman and medieval archaeological, artistic and monumental wealth, is a cultural, economic and administrative centre of North Dalmatia. The narrower and broader vicinity of Zadar is fascinating too. The Tourist Riviera of Zadar stretches from Zadar to Nin and farther to the north, and as far as Biograd to the south. In the gravitational area of Zadar, there are other historical places of interest, such as Nin, Pag, Biograd, Obrovac, Benkovac and about fifty picturesque little tourist places, the primeval plains, Ravni Kotari, the clean and healthy environment, attractive for hiking, excursions, gastronomic, wine and other tourist itineraries, national parks and parks of nature, such as: Paklenica, Plitvice, Kornati, Krka, Velebít, Telascica. And, finally the lace-like developed coast with three hundreds of islands and islets which like a pearl neck-lace decorates the scenery around this lovely town.
